“ I knew the first day I met him was on 97 in his white truck 2 black fenders and we would race then he wanted a rematch after my car broke down an then we ran into each other started hanging out a lot me him an dalton did an they asked me work at spookhouse. We would always have fun everywhere we went blast subs sing are hearts our or we are making a lot of joke throughout the ride wherever we were going. Once I got out of highschool he was there for me a lot as much I was there for him helping him at the shop id take him is favorite food an he would always want rather a pepsi or a sweet tea from McDonald's so id get him what he wanted. Him an I had a very close bond with him. When my mom was always in the hospital he would want to go with me an he was always there 100% rest the way, an one day I was already in sprignfueld with my mom and he raced up here just to see her. He was a member of my family an he will always be a member of my family. He was goofy, stubborn, kind, caring, loving and wgen needed to talk we would talk an rant to each other. There was never a moment we didnt share with each other. I loved every moment with him and I cant wait to have more when its my time. Keep doing burnies donuts an blastin your subs for me bub, we can have that rematch race when I get back up there. I love you lil brother an I missin you a lot right now

“ you know, god has a purpose for everything but what was the purpose to take away our best friend, our brother, our support, our dumbass. shit happens people say but this wasn't no ordinary accident. this was the moment our best friend left us and is now no longer suffering. i sure as hell now see the light in my life and this is the time we all need to be better not for anyone else, not for austin, not for family, or friends... but for ourselves. A best friend is gone too soon is a tragedy. this has made me realize the value of our friendship is beyond measures and it still doesn't feel real that he is really gone and don't think it will for a long time. and you know a true best friend can never truly be lost. he was the most stubborn but a good person. austin you didn't deserve this. you were so happy and no one could have seen this coming. and everyone grieves differently but with this one i think our friend group is going to grieve similar. we were very close to austin and now he is living it up there and watching down over us. i bet he is missing us all and ofc never gonna forget us bc we sure as hell ain't going to forget him. he will forever be in our hearts. he was irreplaceable. Until we meet again Austin Breazzeal fly high and paint the sky with your brightest colors 🥹🙏❤️👍

“ Austin was a good friend, more like a brother to most of us. He was there if you needed help and didn't care about helping. He is definitely gonna be missed by his second family of friends he had. We all loved him and would have done anything for him. He was goofy and funny but he was also kind and caring.

“ Austin was a wonderful young man. He was friends with Joe so he frequently was at the house. He stopped by the other day and helped me finish fixing up my truck before a long trip I need to do. Austin had a great hart and very compasionet. A couple of months ago I was visiting with my wife at the cemetery he was driving by and stopped to see how I was doing we talked abit said some words with her then he gave me a hug. He was at her funeral. That meant the world to me, thank you, you will be very much missed by many. To short hope you enjoyed the ride peace out love you kid
