

Cheryl Tamara Jones

April 4, 1958 - November 29, 2025

Lovingly written by the family...

Cheryl Tamara Jones, a devoted mother, stepmother, grandmother, and the heart of her family, passed away just five months after the loss of her beloved partner, Robert “Marty” Castleman. She was born on April 4, 1958.

Cheryl was preceded in death by her first husband, Kenneth Jones, and later in life, by Marty—her best friend, her partner, and the love she chose.

She is survived by her brother, Gary (Debbie) Blagg; her sons, Joshua (Laura) Jones and Jeremy (Laura Sims) Jones. She also leaves behind her stepchildren—Ginger (Tom) Ring, Keith Jones, and Chris (Lindsey) Jones—each of whom she loved deeply and considered her own. Cheryl was a proud and loving grandmother to fifteen grandchildren who lit up her life.

Through every emotional storm, Cheryl pushed forward with fierce devotion. Family meant everything to her. She lived for holidays, family gatherings, video chats—any chance to see a familiar face or hear a loved one’s voice. She made sure everyone felt seen, heard, and loved.

Her warmth, her strength, and her unwavering love will be remembered and carried forward by all who knew her.

Ma, your ride doesn't end here—you're just catching up to Marty. We'll see you both down the road.

A celebration of life will take place on her favorite beach in California at a time to be determined.
