“ I went to school with Mr. Dudley's daughter, but I what made me close to Mr. Dudley was when I would be with my mother in the butch shop he knew I wanted to join the Army. Mr. Dudley had served in the Army and fought in Vietnam. He would share stories with me about his time in Vietnam and give me guidance about being in war. I joined the army and become an in Infantry Officer. I would think about Mr. Dudley's guidance when I commanded an Infantry company at, the Battle of Al Najaf and Battle of Fallujah. He is a great husband, father, Grandfather, and mentor to other children. Sir I will look for you when I get to Fiddler's Green. Salute to you SIR. (Retired) MAJOR Keah-tigh.
